

CELL PHONE DRIVING ESSAY

Everyday people die in car accidents because they use cell phones while driving According to research cell phones are leading factors that cause accidents.

Distracted attention results in low perception of the driver reducing performance levels. They put not only their life in danger but other drivers and pedestrians. Therefore, most of the governments, including Austria, Australia, Switzerland, Greece, Germany, and different Asian as well as African countries, have imposed restriction on using cell phones during driving. The problem with this is that so many people do it and it is so unbearable hearing so many stories of how many people die every year because they make the mistake

Essay Topic: Driving Sorry, but copying text is forbidden on this website! Cell phones support in making a direct contact with person effectively and without wastage of any time. They also say that talking on the cell phone while driving is just the same as having a conversation with a passenger in their car and that the government will not ban people from having passengers in their cars so why should they ban talking on cell phones while driving. Manual distraction is when a driver uses a cell phone while driving is an epidemic that has taken our nation by storm. How can we make the roads a safe place to be again. Some of these come in the form of headsets and give the user a voice activated sequence, which allows you to talk into the speaker, and the number will instantly be dialed. That is a plethora of people that are at risk of texting while driving. Cell phones provide communication with greater flexibility. Furthermore, using FMs on cell phones can provide information about weather and traffic. However, using cell phone to attend to an important phone call can also make one panic and can put you in to an emergency. However, there are no laws banning hands free cell phone usage, despite research claiming hands free devices are just as dangerous handheld devices. While this is not realistic to think any parent would encourage their teen to drink and drive, it is something that one might as well tell them if you permit these children to talk on a cell phone while driving. It has not stopped the people from using their phones which causes innocent people being injured or killed I am here to prove today that driving with cell phones can be deadly. Driving drunk only makes a person seven times more likely to be in a crash

Bernstein A major strength of driving skills is a pro-active approach anticipating actions of other drivers and making adjustments accordingly. The more the number of tickets you attract against your name, the higher the insurance will be. Using a cell phone, especially texting and driving, puts not only the driver but those around in serious danger. It is unfortunate that many of these daily activities occur while a person is driving. The question is people more concerned more with their conveniences more than they are with their safety or safety of others. Nine chances out of ten that person is on a cell phone right. Cell phones have become a natural way of life to where we pick up our phones and use them like second nature. One cannot focus fully on the road and the other vehicles, if one keeps talking on phone consistently while driving. When we drive that should be the only activity we are doing. Many children, students, and adults use their phones frequently, and there could be many growing common risks developing that we are unaware of.

Sturnguist, Conclusion The paper has presented arguments on both sides of the issue using or not using cell phones during driving. Texting is the most dangerous distraction because it requires visual, manual, and cognitive attention "Facts and Statistics". As such, the more complex a situation is higher are chances of distraction that presents a threat to road safety. Mobile phones, now known as cell phones, have been around since the s; however, they did not become main stream until the s. You wonder what could possibly be causing the driver to drive so erratically. Undesired Situation by Using Cell phones during Driving Billions of people throughout the world are using cell phones in daily routine life. This leads me to believe that if people can't concentrate on the road while talking on a cell phone, they shouldn't talk at all while driving.